

Intervention Activities

10 in a Row

The goal is for a student to achieve a minimum of 10 correct answers in a row. A coach can sit next to a student to listen and record the correct answers (place an x in the circle). When a student answers incorrectly (misses), the coach begins recording on the next row down. This form provides the visual feedback that some students need to register the number of correct responses in a row.

The coach may mentally recognize if the student is successful at 1) two high tones, 2) two low tones, 3) high low sweep tones, and 4) low high sweep tones. Often, students will master same tone trials before they begin to master sweep tone trials. The coach can provide additional incentive by recognizing with the student their listening strengths (“Oh, you’re very good at hearing two sounds that are the same.”) and weaknesses (“Oh, listen carefully, they’re not always the same...which sound was first and which sound was second?”).

The primary role of the coach is to record, not to interact (distract) the student.
